Give your employees one place to find information on everything regarding their relocation. Yep. Everything.

Business Challenges

Relocating employees experience a great deal of anxiety due to not knowing what's coming up next in their move, who to contact, or where to find information. They put a lot of effort into hunting down answers and gathering and tracking dates, documents, to-dos, and people.

- > They're juggling many tasks simultaneously.
- > They feel rushed, overloaded, scattered, and displaced.
- > It's hard for them to stay on top of what's coming next and all their key contacts and documents.

Plus is known for our high-touch service, and Elo for Employees further enhances this personal experience by bringing all the key players even closer together. High-tech and high-touch never blended together more beautifully.

How This Affects You

- > Your employees are distracted and stressed out; their heads aren't in the game because they're worrying about selling their house, finding a school, or getting that work visa.
- > Not only are they not focused on work, your relocating employees are spending loads of unnecessary time tracking down information and trying to figure out what they need to do.
- > Negative move experiences can lead to retention issues.

What if You Could:

- > Put your employees at the center of their relocation, with complete visibility to all aspects of their move?
- > Give them easy-to-use tools so they always know what's coming up, what they need to do, and when they need to do it?
- > Help them prepare for their move with access to articles and resources about their new community?

If:

- > Your employees are feeling stressed or distracted during their relocation
- > They're spending an excessive amount of time on move-related activities, which is keeping them from their work
- > Employees are choosing to leave the company shortly after their move or assignment is over

Then

You can give your employees the visibility, the tools, and the resources they need to have control of their own relocation, whether they want to be super-engaged in every decision or just knowledgeable about how to smoothly navigate the process.

What's in It for You

- > Calm, well-informed, and focused employees who have more time and energy to settle into their new role
- > An improved employee experience that leads to greater employee satisfaction and an enhanced brand reputation

What It Is

Elo for Employees is a comprehensive, cloud-based platform that places your employee and their partner at the center of the relocation process and provides a single place for them to access and take action on information about their move.

- > They'll have complete visibility into everything related to their move, together in one secure, central location.
- > They can proactively manage upcoming events and tasks, so they're never taken by surprise.
- > They'll have access to move checklists, destination guides, calculators, and other resources for more than 200 destinations.

Elo for Employees is built on the world's #1 cloud platform, Salesforce, which is used for data management by some of the world's largest companies. The Salesforce platform provides an intuitive user interface and is the most scalable, secure enterprise cloud platform available.
